Theory of Change

Problems identified: 1) High unemployment rates and lack of sources of income generation and means of subsistence, particularly among young people aged 15 to 35. 2) Feelings of discrimination and exclusion of the population in the sharing of resources in northern communities, leading to radicalization and opportunities for recruitment.

Action dimensions: 1) Technical and professional training for young people aged 15 to 35, provision of work kits and initial capital, and facilitation of access to markets. 2) Training of local community, religious and opinion leaders in human and citizenship rights, as well as in conflict management and resolution, and their engagement in LCCs and DDO; Promotion of coexistence, social cohesion and peace actions.

Key Results
